1. Raise your hand if you can name two things that are made from cotton.

2. Raise your hand if you know where peanut butter comes from.

3. Raise your hand if you know where milk comes from.

4. Raise your hand if you know where honey comes from.

5. Raise your hand if you know why it is important to wash your hands when handling animals.

To facilitate recording of results, you can record either the positive or negative responses, whichever is the smaller number and is easier to count. To calculate results, divide the number of affirmative responses by the total number of total participants.
